February 2011

Twenty years ago the founding Directors of the NAPSLO Educational Foundation were putting the finishing touches on organizing and chartering an educational foundation devoted to the surplus lines industry. In December, 1991 the organizational work was completed and announced at the retirement of Derek Hughes as President of Western World Insurance Group. To commemorate the occasion Western World had committed the initial funds for the creation of the foundation. Derek graciously agreed to allow his name to be used; thus the Derek Hughes/ NAPSLO Educational Foundation, Ltd. was officially established. As we close in our twentieth anniversary we have accomplished a great deal for the surplus lines industry.

Education has always been a focus of the Foundation. Anyone following the news about the cost of education at colleges and universities knows that it has been increasingly difficult for students, and their parents, to graduate without going deeply in debt.

As a smaller part of the insurance industry, the Foundation and NAPSLO, work to find ways to bring talented students into the surplus lines industry. Our scholarship program has played an important part in our efforts.

In 2010 the Foundation gave out 14 scholarships of $5,000 to students who have expressed an interest in the insurance industry. The Board would like to expand both the amount of the scholarships and also the number of scholarships but with the state of the economy and limited investment returns it is difficult to do either at this time without additional support.

If you would like to help us with our existing scholarship programs or would like to find out how to create a named scholarship fund, please contact Board member Tom Stamm or the NAPSLO office.

In addition to our scholarship efforts, the Foundation has reached out to college students by sponsoring college symposiums at Troy University and Olivet College for many years. This year will be a year of transition of the management of the annual symposium in Chicago from Olivet to Illinois State University.

Olivet and Prof. Mike Hubbel have been great supporters of the Foundation in the past and we thank them for their past efforts. The Foundation symposiums provide an opportunity to promote the surplus lines industry. Given our past success we are looking at ways to offer a third annual symposium, possibly in the western United States.

While our college educational efforts have been a focus of our efforts in 2010 we continued our arrangements with the A.M. Best Co. to produce the annual report on the surplus lines industry and with the Institutes to continue the Associate in Surplus Lines Insurance (ASLI) designation. There are nearly 2000 ASLI designations that have been conferred over the past 15 years.

All of these efforts would not be possible without your support. On behalf of the Foundation Board of Directors I would like to thank you and encourage you to read the enclosed pages to follow our efforts of the past year.

William R. Berkley - 2010 Foundation Lecture Speaker

William R. Berkley, presented the Derek Hughes/NAPSLO Educational Foundation Lecture Series at the 2010 NAPSLO Annual Convention in Atlanta.

Berkley, founder of the Fortune 500 property-casualty insurance holding company, W. R. Berkley Corporation, shared his perspective on the current business and political environment.

Berkley, who founded the company in 1967, has served continuously as Chairman and CEO over the past 43 years.

In his speech, Mr. Berkley said, “The U.S. economy is beginning to show signs of improvement and that should continue, however, confidence is needed to foster additional growth.”

Despite the improvement, Mr. Berkley said that politicians in Washington, D.C. need to rethink what they are doing and act more in a bipartisan way to give business confidence and predictability. He also said that the business sector needed to become less cautious about expansion.

Surplus Lines direct premiums decline in 2009, according to AM Best

Breaking a two-decade run of fairly consistent gains, the surplus lines industry’s direct premiums written declined for a third consecutive year in 2009; however it should continue to generate positive underwriting results driven by adherence to disciplined underwriting and favorable prior-year loss-reserve development, according to the A.M. Best Co.’s U.S. Surplus Lines Market Review report.

Copies of the annual report were sent to NAPSLO members and a PDF copy of the report is available to download from the NAPSLO website.

At 4.1%, the decline was still better than the previous year’s 6.2% reversal, but higher than the overall property/casualty (P/C) industry’s 3.3% DPW fall off. A major source of pricing pressure and profit margin compression still are the standard market carriers that compete on risks traditionally insured in the surplus lines market. Recessionary economic conditions, volatile financial markets and competition from Bermuda-based carriers are added challenges for this market, according to A.M Best.

The surplus lines market’s total return on surplus (equity), reflecting the impact of unrealized capital gains or losses, was much improved in 2009, due to the financial market recovery. While both the surplus lines composite and the P/C industry, overall, experienced tremendous improvement in return on surplus, the composite still outpaced the total P/C industry by more than three percentage points. In terms of both five and 10-year average returns on surplus, the surplus lines composite exceeded the total industry’s by slightly greater margins.

Still, surplus lines specialists, particularly the market leaders, generated considerable operating profits and returns on both revenue and surplus. In 2009, favorable prior-year loss reserve development also helped offset added underwriting performance. Surplus line specialists in 2009 released a significant percentage of prior year loss reserves relative to net premiums earned, as did the P/C industry, which led to a sizable benefit on their year-end combined ratio.

- Nine of the top 10 U.S. surplus lines groups by DPW remained the same as in 2008, and the rankings from one to eight did not change.
- For the sixth year in a row, the surplus lines industry recorded no financial impairments, compared with 18 financial impairments for the admitted property/casualty industry.

The report said that there might be a twinge of tightening in the market, with a select few standard and specialty carriers beginning to step back from certain unprofitable classes. Recognizable trends have yet to emerge, however.

The Special Report on the Surplus Lines Market, commissioned by the Derek Hughes/NAPSLO Educational Foundation, is the 17th annual study of the surplus lines industry which analyzes the various segments of the U.S. excess and surplus lines market and provides A.M. Best’s perspective on the industry’s operating performance, financial condition, solvency trends, stability and emerging issues in the market.

In addition to the financial review of the industry, the surplus lines distribution systems was a focus of the special sections topic of the report, examining licensing and compliance, tax reporting; pending legislation; commissions; relationships, and mergers and acquisitions.

Derek Hughes/NAPSLO Educational Foundation 2010 Annual Report
Foundation passes $5.6 million in assets

Thanks to contributions and a successful Golf Invitational event at the 2010 NAPSLO Mid-Year Leadership Forum, the Derek Hughes/NAPSLO Educational Foundation had more than $5.6 million in assets by July 31, 2010 the end of the Foundation’s fiscal year.

“The Foundation is grateful for the continued support provided by firms and individuals in our industry,” said President Joseph D. Timmons, CPCU, ASLI. “This continued support enables us to continue our efforts to improve the educational opportunities in the industry.”

A number of firms made significant pledges or contributions in 2010 including $25,000 from the Surplus Lines Association of Arizona Foundation, $15,000 from the Kemper Educational and Charitable Fund; $5,000 each from Partners Specialty Group, the Surplus Line Association of Washington, and Bell & Clements. In addition, employees of Partners Specialty combine to contributed approximate $4,400.

The 14th Annual Foundation Golf Invitational in 2010 also raised more than $100,000 and a Golf Invitational is scheduled for the 2011 NAPSLO Mid-Year Leadership Forum in Naples, Fla., in late February and the Foundation expects to again raise a significant amount of money for its projects.

Major expense areas for the Foundation during the past year included commissioning the A.M. Best Annual Review of the Surplus Lines Industry; 14 $5,000 scholarships for students; the annual golf tournament expenses; and sponsorship of college symposiums with Olivet College and Troy University.

“Through our scholarships, symposiums at colleges, and the ASLI designation program we have been able to increase the knowledge about the surplus lines industry,” said Mr. Timmons. “We will continue to look for ways to provide additional educational outlets to members of the industry.”
