Vermont	Surplus Lines Broker License Info; FAQs: Can a surplus lines broker charge a fee?	A Surplus Lines Broker should not be charging a policy fee for service that is already paid for by the receipt of commission by the broker as part of the sale. In instances where additional services are provided to the insured, a broker can charge a fee that is reasonable in relationship to the service provided. Vermont law requires a broker to obtain a prior written agreement with a client, policyholder, or other member of the public concerning the fees or charges made by that broker for that broker procuring, servicing, or providing advice on insurance contracts. Are fees taxable? Per SSAP No. 53, premium is defined as “...the contractually determined amount charged by the reporting entity to the policyholder for the effective period of the contract based upon the expectation of risk, policy benefits, and expenses associated with the coverage provided by the terms of the insurance contract.”	Premium Only
